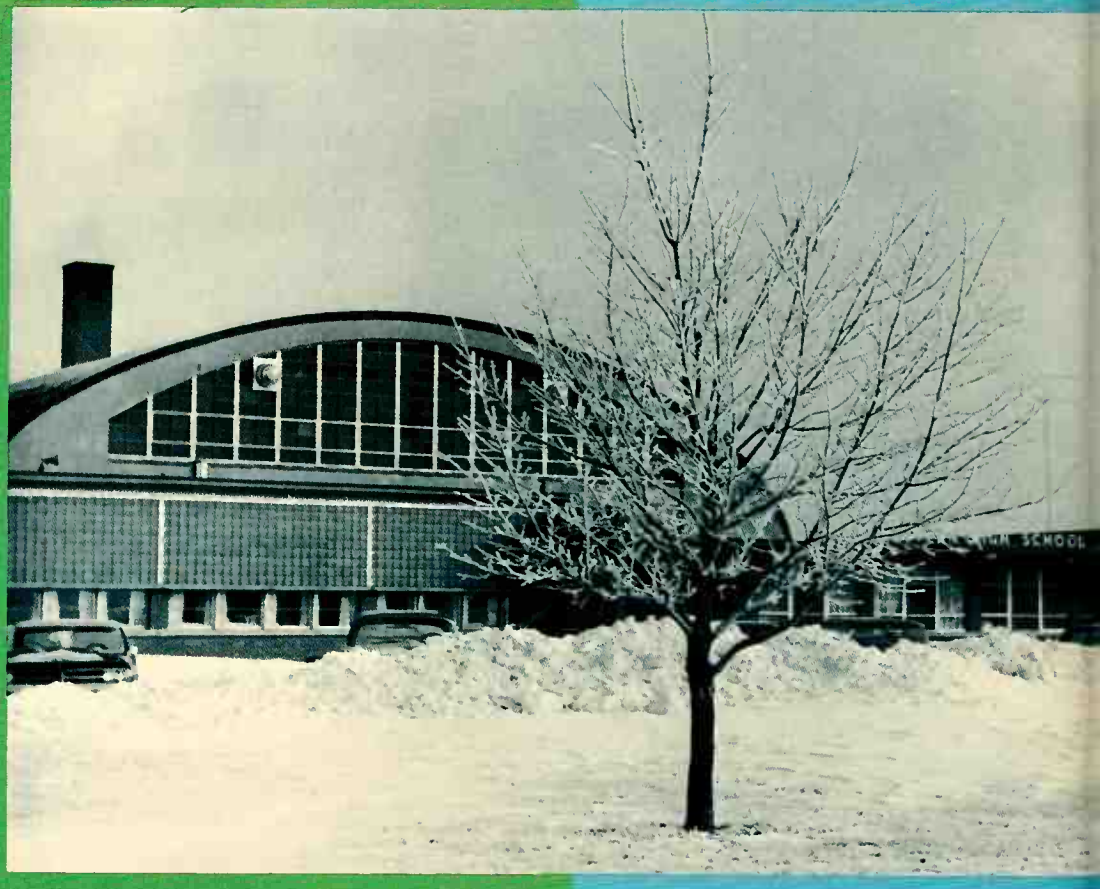
Northwestern High School, Springfield, Ohio

Volume 13

Through vacillating



seasons, everchanging events generated

a panorama . . .

Changes in both the social and academic atmosphere of Northwestern High School reflected the varying seasons of '64-'65. Brisk autumn breezes brought bubbling enthusiasm to crisp fall days. Students tackled new subjects with alacrity and launched into favorite activities with vigor. Football games, plays, and Homecoming activities punctuated the vivid autumn story. Then, with one sudden snowstorm, the tempo quickened as winter descended. Sparkling Christmas festivities and a long-anticipated vacation brightened winter holidays. Cold, bleak January days paralleled the weeks of hard work required to prepare for exams and the routine school work necessary to begin a new semester. Eventually winter retreated and the advent of spring broke the grey doldrums. Rehearsing for our musical and play, meeting deadlines, planning a prom, preparing for graduation, and hunting for jobs all created a frenzied pace at the year's end. Just when students felt that they were doomed to unending schoolwork, doors opened, books closed, and everyone escaped to balmy days.

recorded by the Warrior Staff

For the staff, publishing a record of a school year involved responsibility, anxiety, work, and decisions: selecting a theme, analyzing our school, revising write ups, scheduling pictures, soliciting ads and subscriptions, and meeting deadlines. This was our life from September until late June. Research and planning were brought to an exciting pause when the staff received news of an A rating from the National Yearbook Scholastic Association for the 1964 Warrior, but they resumed efforts to exceed last year's rating while giving a complete picture of life at Northwestern in 1965.

Editors Lisa Neufeld, Joyce Snider and Jeannine Hawk take a final look at the 1965 ladder.

and organized by the student council . . .

Voicing the opinions of the student body, the Student Council debated certain issues pertaining to school life and activities.

This group was in charge of selling candy after school and was in charge of all concessions for both the Jr. High home football and basketball games. Council members revised the Student Handbooks and bound them after school for the incoming Sophomores.

They sponsored the Kick Off as an Icebreaker to initiate the Sophomores into high school, and their annual Christmas Dance.

Another responsibility was to serve as hosts and hostesses during College Night, Open House, and other occasions. This body helped in promoting the idea for renewal of the Student Exchange Program with the aid of their new advisor, Mr. Herbert Lutz.

Council representatives were as follows: Seniors, Lester Barnhart, President; Karen Clark, Secretary; Patty Group, and Max Miller. Juniors were Bill Botkin, Vice President; Sandi Casey, Pete Haines, Treasurer; and Cathy Moore. Sophomores were Ruth Armstrong, Gary Maynard, Phil McCullough, and Barb Wilkinson.

AUTUMN

As autumn fires devoured summer's verdure, big activities consumed vacation's fresh strength by immediately plunging students into a whirling pace:

Football 8,9,12,13
Homecoming 10,11
Cheerleading 14
Band 15
Thespian Play 16,17

As the lights flashed on for the first time on the Warrior's electric football scoreboard, on September 11, 1964, many different feelings were aroused. Students cheered, adults applauded, the band played, and the Warrior Club remembered how hard they had worked to make this all possible.

They had requested donations, had held a Donkey Basketball Game, and had sponsored activities for two years in order to raise the money to purchase the scoreboard.

Taylor Field was selected for the name of the Northwestern Football Field as tribute to Doctor Taylor for his many years of service. Never accepting any remuneration, he acted as physician for the Warrior Football Team at all games. He died in 1963 but will always be alive in the memories of all Northwestern students.

Our brand new 1,729 dollar scoreboard is snapped by the photographer just before the first football game of the season.

Warriors Dedicated Taylor Field

Courtney Metzger, 1963-64 President of the Warrior Club, Frank Haines, Master of Ceremonies, Gordon Circle, 1964-65 President of the Warrior Club, and Martin Gainer, President of the School Board, lead the ceremonies for the dedication of Taylor Field.

Atmospheric conditions had been electric for days and the tension had mounted. Posters were made for queen campaigns. Each manager had solicited votes for his candidates. Badges, printed with a candidates name, were issued to the students.

After the candidates had been nominated, everyone awaited that special night when the 1964 Homecoming Queen would be crowned.

On the evening of October 23, 1964, anxiety filled the air as the attendants patiently awaited half-time when that special announcement would be made to climax their evening. Finally Lester Barnhart proclaimed Bindie Wade the new queen. She was crowned by last year's queen, Char Widener.

Homecoming attendants were Karen Clark, FTA; Jeannine Hawk, Band; Luanne Rankin, GAA; Joyce Snyder, Choir; Sue Steinbrunner; FHA; Beth Stewart; FNC; and Becky Westerfield, Varsity "N."

Although several key players were lost due to injuries, the Warriors yet forced their opponents to fight hard for points needed for Victory. Next year's outlook is much brighter since there are only six senior lettermen graduating from the squad this year.

It was announced at the annual football banquet, October 23, that the only member of the 1964 Warrior squad to make the M.R.V.L. All League Team was Senior Captain, Larry Funderburg. Head Coach Charles Leach announced his resignation as mentor of the football squad.

On June 21, 1964, Northwestern's cheerleaders journeyed to Syracuse, Indiana, to attend the Smith-Walbridge Camp. They entered daily competition which was open to all cheerleading groups attending the 6-day camp. In final competition they received a second-place rating.

Fresh life was injected into school pep when the cheerleaders introduced their catchy slogans for pre-game publicity and their new cheers for the 1964-1965 seasons.

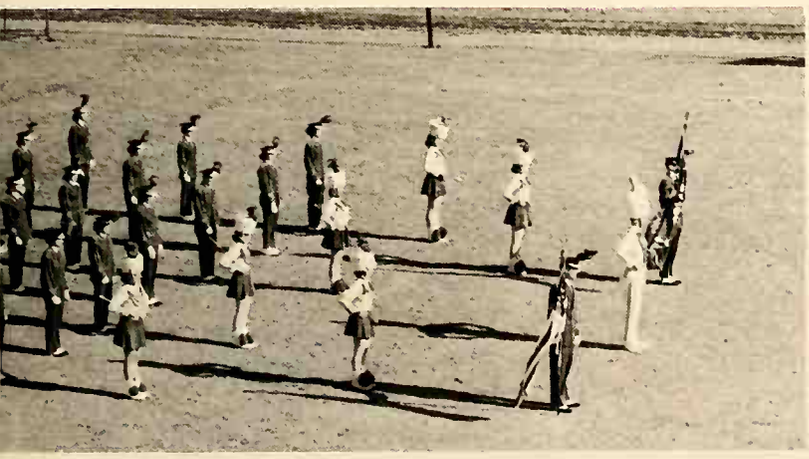
Majorettes and



Marching Band Stepped High

Adding extra excitement to the football games, the Northwestern High School marching band and majorettes performed during half-time. Together they performed skits to entertain the spectators at both home and away games. Members of the band are: Teresa Davidson, clarinet; Ellen Steele, clarinet; Bill Trop, clarinet; Jeannie Cable, clarinet; Jo Ann Chizmar, clarinet; Kay Huenke, clarinet; David Gamble, clarinet; Rita Shaffer, clarinet; Elaine Merrow, clarinet; Brenda Maine, clarinet; Diana Lancaster, clarinet; Mary Steinebrunner, clarinet; Anita Massie, clarinet; Allen Cully, clarinet; Debbie Hokenson, flute; Connie Crow, clarinet; Luka Freemanis, Clarinet; Sharon Crabbe, clarinet; Susan Newman, clarinet; Rachel Way, clarinet; Phil McCullough, saxophone; Ruth Clingman, bells; Carolyn Erwin, flute; Sherylee Frankart, flute; Ellen Johnson, french horn; Debbie Rockfield, saxophone; Max Miller, saxophone; Terry Rockfield, drum; Nancy Rapp, drum; Mark Smith, drum; Jim Peck, drum; Blaine Strome, drum; Marty Harness, drum; Sue Steinebrunner, drum; Brenda Pryor, french horn; Steve Sanderson, trumpet; Lois Hartman, trumpet; Steve Caudell, trumpet; Doug Studebaker, trumpet; Jim Heilman, trumpet; Keith Pencil, trumpet; Jeff Barth, french horn; John Miller, trumpet; John Raulston, trumpet; Connie Mumma, trumpet; Ronnie Ruman, trumpet; Bennie Grauman, trumpet; Keith Hyslop, trumpet; John Skillings, tuba; Cindy Ream, tuba; Ray Steele, tuba; Gene Mokry, baritone; Eddy Harbison, trombone; Ron Eldridge, trombone; Steve Jones, trombone.

Ginny Errett finishes her telephone conversation abruptly, then hurriedly leaves.

Bachelor Father, a play adaptation of the television program, was presented by Northwestern's Thespians, on Saturday evening, November 15, 1964 in the Little Theater. In this light-hearted comedy the girls, led by Kelly Gregg, were on strike against the boys, who were led by her boyfriend, Howard. Howard and the boys wanted to substitute a ranch party for their annual prom, an idea to which the girls were definitely opposed. This situation was further complicated by her Uncle Bently, who sided with the boys. It was a fast-moving play which provided a rollicking evening for all.

Backstage waiting for their cues, Becky Russell, Carol Strickland, Mike Wilson, Nellie Strickland, Lisa Neufeld, and Jim Gregory relax by playing cards.

John Skillings and Beth Stewart plot to persuade the boys and girls to agree on a Ranch Party or a prom.

Math, Chemistry, Physics and

Chemistry is a science that deals with the characteristics of elements or simple substances, the changes that take place when they are combined and the laws of their combination and behavior. While Physics is a science dealing with the physical properties of matter and energy including the science of mechanics, heat, light, sound, and electricity. Biology is the study of the origins and life histories of plants and animals.

Students taking Algebra I and II found that it takes much effort and concentration to solve the thought problems and equations required of them. Unified Geometry contains the study of plane and solid geometry: triangles, circles, and squares in solid geometry become cones, spheres and cubes.

1. Mr. Hill uses the over-head projector for on-the-spot communication with students in math classes.
2. Measuring the correct weights of chemicals, as Bruce Woodhouse and Mark Way discover, is a vital factor for a successful experiment.
3. While using home-made butterfly nets out behind the football field, biology students were spied by our photographer. He records how carefully they caught insects for their required bug collections.

Members of the Math-Science Club meet regularly with Mr. Hill, Mr. Long and the officers to listen to the lectures of guest speakers.

Biology Intrigue Students

Earning a B.S. at Wittenberg University qualified Ralph Hill to teach our Algebra I, Algebra II, and unified geometry classes. He was co-advisor of the Math-Science Club and was Athletic Fund Treasurer.

Physics, chemistry and advanced math were taught by Phillip Long, who acquired his B.S. and M.E. at Wittinberg University. In 1962 he also obtained an M.A. from the University of Michigan. His extra duties are: being co-advisor of the Math-Science Club, and advisor of the projectionists; overseeing the weathermen and setting up microphones for all assemblies, musicals, and games.

Joseph Hinkle received his A.B. and M.A. from Moorehead State Teachers College in Kentucky. While experiencing his first year of teaching, he taught biology at Northwestern High School, was the junior high football coach, reserve basketball coach, and Varsity "N" advisor.

Using special equipment in the science lab, daily weather reports are compiled by our weathermen, Max Miller and Jim Gregory, for our morning announcements.

Weird shadows are cast as John Evans and Roger Brannon, student projectionists, ready the projector to show a movie in the audio-visual room.

Obtaining her B.A. from Westminster College enabled Katherine Craig to teach English II & IV. She also was the advisor of the Future Nurses Club.

Mary Ann Freeman graduated from St. Louis University with a B.S. She instructed speech, English III classes, and advised the journalism class.

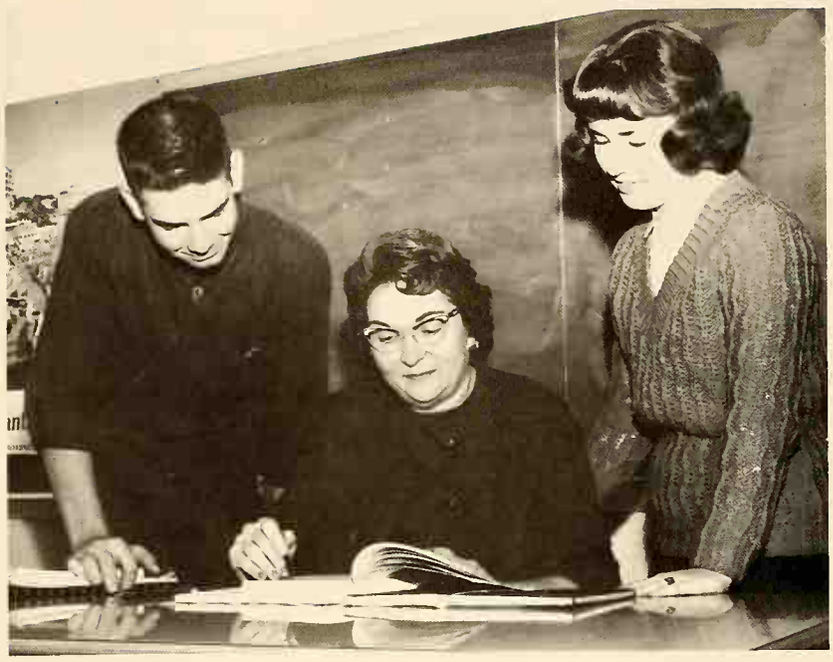
Geraldine Hinkle earned an A.B. at Moorehead State Teachers College in Kentucky. She taught our sophomore English as well as some junior high English.

Attending Wittenberg University, Marna Krueger earned her B.S. This year she taught Spanish classes I, II, and III and English III.

Teaching Latin and English, plus advising the Future Teachers of America kept Mary Krueger quite busy. She graduated with an A.B. from Wittenberg University.

Thanksgiving assembly provided an opportunity for Jeannine Hawk to orate her Prince of Peach speech, required memory work for all speech class members.

Assisting Mrs. Krueger with decorating the Spanish bulletin board are Jill Riley and Sharon Benedict.



Mrs. Craig gives individual instruction with tricky symbolisms to Becky Westerfield and Doug Miller.

Courses Developed Skills in Communication through Spoken and Written Words

Hunting for promotional schemes such as selling a year's subscription to the Smoke Signal and publishing a football annual are "firsts" that this year's staff find to be good possibilities, and when put into reality, they found they worked.

"What is a conditioned response?" asks Mr. Tuvell in Psychology class.

Frequent absentees often receive a telephone call from Mr. Lutz who would like to know the nature of their absences.

Sophomores taking world history studied the annals of the people of the world from the Old Stone Age to present times.

American history juniors studied the history of America from the time of its discovery to modern times.

Studying how our government came into existence and how its many departments function did not appeal to all seniors equally, but all saw the necessity for understanding this ever present force in our lives.

Students in psychology classes studied the way in which people and animals behave and the reasons for such behavior, while society and the way it behaves was discussed by sociology students.

Understanding production, distribution, and consumption of wealth confronted economic students throughout the year.

Students in driver's education classes spent 36 hours in the classroom studying care and maintenance of cars. They actually drive at least 6 hours and observed other student drivers 18 hours.

John Davis, teacher of government, world geography, and driver's education, and coach of the junior high reserve basketball squad and assistant to the high school football coach, received his A.B. from Moorehead State Teacher's College in Kentucky.

American history, psychology, and sociology were taught and the Hi-Y was advised by Jerry Tuvell, who attended Bowling Green State University to earn his B.S.

Charles Leach taught government and world history classes, was coach of the football team, and was advisor of the Varsity "N". He graduated from Ohio State University with his B.S.

Our guidance department was headed by Herbert Lutz, who attended Capital University for his M.E. Morning and afternoon student attendance was also recorded by him.

Required Curricular Program

Was Enriched by Extra Classes

In a stance familiar to all, Mr. Leach, lecturing from his notes and anecdotes, keeps classes interested and attentive.

Mr. Davis checks the oil in the driver's education car, another routine to be learned by future drivers, Don Putterbaugh, Bob Quinton, Barry White, and Phil Martin in driver's education class.

Creative and Inventive Art Classes Are Never Dull or Boring.

Students in Art I, II, III, and IV study the basic art principles and how to apply them in their drawing, sketching, graphic arts, ceramic clay, and other craft projects. Although the Art IV students study similar material, they use it in a more advanced manner than students in Art I.

Using the potter's wheel, as Nellie Strickland discovers, requires patience and perserverance, and hopes that skill will come.

Joyce Snider and Mike Procise quickly sketch the setup put together by Mrs. Benedict as ten minute time limits, or less, are sometimes put into effect.

Designing decorations and helping decorate for dances, plays, and musicals were a few extra duties of Fern Benedict. She earned her B.S. at Ohio State University and now teaches all art classes in the high school and junior high and yearbook.

Corridors Echoed with

Now a Beat . . .

Rough spots are ironed out in final practice by the stage band before a performance.

Choir and band pool their talents and efforts to produce one big show, the spring musical. At other times, they perform as groups and individuals for assemblies, special programs, plays, and pep meetings, and enter contests for ratings. Individual and group instructions prepare students to enter instrumental and vocal groups.

Bruce Kesler graduated from Miami University with a B.S. and his M.E. at Wittenberg University. He had charge of all Northwestern's junior and senior high instrumental music. Also included in his day are regular instrumental classes for elementary students.

Constantly busy moments in choir make time slip by quickly, so students must hurry to return their folders and proceed to their next class.

Then a Tune

Planning, practicing occupy hours of band time before shows can appear on the football field.

Studying foods and sewing compose one-half of the year's work in home economics classes. As the girls complete their projects great enthusiasm builds until it's time for tasting or modeling.

Students ages 14-17 are run ragged by youngsters 2-6 at the annual Valentine Party.

Laboratory Activity Simulates Homemaking Experiences

Students in Home Ec. III & IV pull taffy soon to be arranged in a Christmas display of 12 different kinds of candy.

Mrs. Mattimore helps Bonnie Yowler decipher instructions for the proper method of inserting a zipper in a skirt.

Mrs. Hamilton proves that it is possible to accomplish a perfect cart wheel.

"Activity" Courses Appeal to Young Men

When their model houses are completed, these boys will have the know-how to build a full-size house.

Push up-collapse-push up-calisthenics must be done before class begins.

Teaching all home economics classes and advising the Future Homemakers of America occupied most of the school time and many evening hours of Virginia Mattimore, who obtained her B.S. at Wittenberg University.

Thomas Greer taught General Math II, all boys gym classes and was the varsity basketball coach. After graduating from Wilmington College with a B.S., he attended Wittenberg University to get his M.E. earned in 1963.

James Payne was the instructor of all mechanical drawing and industrial arts classes, and was advisor of the Youth For Christ organization. He received both his B.S. and M.A. from Ohio State University.

Students Trained for Business Careers

Harold Griest, B.S. and M.E. from Wittenberg University, instructed students in economics, bookkeeping, and Typing II. Every afternoon he traveled to the elementary to act as vice-principal.

Having earned her B.S. at Wittenberg University, Linda Madsen, an experienced teacher, taught shorthand I and II, Typing I, and office practice. She had charge of the Tri Hi-Y and was assistant supervisor of the Future Teachers of America.

Mrs. Madsen administers a shorthand speed test to Nancy Pencil and Peggy Brown in office practice class.

Mr. Griest, pointing to a chart used often in Bookkeeping class, explains the procedure of closing a ledger.

Correct starting position for hands and fingers guarantees typing students potential success in the typing of letters, practice drills, and timed writings.

13th Consecutive Parliamentary Procedure Contest Winners Featured on Television

Hours of practice in judging land and soil types, helpful criticism in parliamentary procedure, and public speaking result in honors and awards as the trophies on display during F.F.A. week testify.

During the F.F.A. banquet, Dave Weddington presents Donna Foster with her queen's trophy.

Richard Adams, assisted by Mr. Pond and Mr. Hite the first semester, and Mr. Vance and Mr. Ropp the second semester, was teacher of all Vocational Agriculture classes and was advisor of the Future Farmers of America. Mr. Adams earned his B.S. at Ohio State University.

Shintu Srivastava, a college professor here from India to learn some of our teaching techniques in vocational agriculture, advises Homer Ryman and Ted Shoyer on their farm projects.

Concert and Dance Sparked Christmas Holidays

Students enjoy dancing to music taped on the stereo which was purchased last spring.

John Skillings and John Bartley disguised as Mr. & Mrs. Santa Claus arrive at the dance to distribute treats and goodies to everyone.

Crystals Shimmered and Tapers Glowed

Creating a delightful atmosphere with its aroma, a huge Christmas tree dominated a Chrystal Chateau in the school gym, setting the background for the traditional candle lighting ceremony and Christmas carol singing at the Christmas Dance. On the evening of December 19, palace windows were lighted by colored lights and crystals while columns of crepe paper and icicles shaped a chateau ballroom. All plans for this affair were arranged and executed by the Student Council.

Dancing in front of a Crystal Chateau intrigues couples.

Smooth Days . . .

Not only are the librarians faced with the usual tasks of stamping and shelving the books, marking library passes and straightening chairs, but they must also collect fines on overdue books, as Ruth Armstrong and Larry Bolen are doing from Don Lair. Student librarians are Barbara Coffman, Sandra Hinkle, Linda Maine, Becky Russell, Beth Stewart, Mary Moore, Jody Lacey, Joe Johnson, Ann Crow, Linda Mershon, Rita Corbin, Jeff Barth, Diana Hacker, Gary Maynard, Brenda Maine, Sue Steinebrunner, Shirley Blankenship, Connie Rowell, and Gaye Meek.

Luanne Rankin, Beth Stewart, and Rita Corbin are doing a few of the chores that arise in the office everyday. Other girls who volunteer their help are Nancy Pencil, Peggy Brown, Judy Williams, Penny Houseman, Patti Baker, Nancy Baker, Ginnie Massie, Sylvia Kaffenbarger, Ginnie Smith, Bindie Wade, Karen Clark, and Barb Lawless.

Waiting for the students to board the buses, our drivers foresee the long homeward-bound journey. Our drivers are Roy Barnhart, Homer Bishop, Ruth Bullock, Wade Campbell, Carl Freeze, Charles Gantt, Robert Grieser, Roland Griest, Jerry Hoberty, John Hohlmayer, Donna Kaffenbarger, Elwood Kiblinger, Richard Neer, Charles Pencil, James Rhoades, Richard Smith, Howard Stewart, Robert Wert, and Melville Davidson.

Mrs. Grieser and Mrs. Shaffer are making a last minute check on the steaming pressurized kettle before noon arrives.

Preparing sandwiches for our lunches is only one of the many time consuming tasks facing Miss Freeze, Mrs. Worthington, and Mrs. Ilges.

Aided by Service Staff

Helping to make our school more of a home away from home was the responsibility of our employees and student helpers. Not only did they work everyday keeping all school facilities clean, comfortable, and in working order, but they employed the necessary safety precautions. To make the atmosphere even more conducive to learning, these people always had a congenial manner, an extra smile.

Among his after-school and Saturday tasks, Mr. Gardner finds that his willingness to help students prepare for extra-curricular activities puts him in odd places, as here, atop the scaffold.

Dan McGillivary, pushing a mop and accompanied by his utility cart is a familiar sight to high school students; however, students do not see most of the other maintenance jobs he performs.

Mr. Snider is often seen in the hall going from one job to another, but amid his busy schedule, he finds time to stop and listen to some students' problems.

Many of the menial jobs necessary to keep the kitchen running smoothly are done by the student kitchen help. Below, Teresa Kaffenbarger leaves a clean table for students who will soon arrive to use the same tables for study hall. Other helpers are Joel Eldridge, Wetzel Eldridge, Gary Rodgers, Phil Belcher, Kenny Michael, Cora Smith, Kay Howard, Mary Moore, Marjorie Henry and Jody Lacey.

Special Interest Clubs Enlivened Friday Afternoons

John Skillings and Marty Blatt are practicing their teaching skills on this Junior High class.

To investigate teaching as a career, students substituted for elementary teachers to get the feel of handling a classroom. Teachers from our faculty attended meetings, discussing why they had entered the teaching profession. Club members worked together giving a Parents' Night Banquet and holding car washes during Future Teachers month, April. Officers for the 1964 year were Ron Ross, president; Marty Blatt, vice president; Cheryl Mast, secretary; and Bindie Wade, treasurer.

Y.F.C. officers meet with President Rusty Kaffenbarger to plan for upcoming meetings.

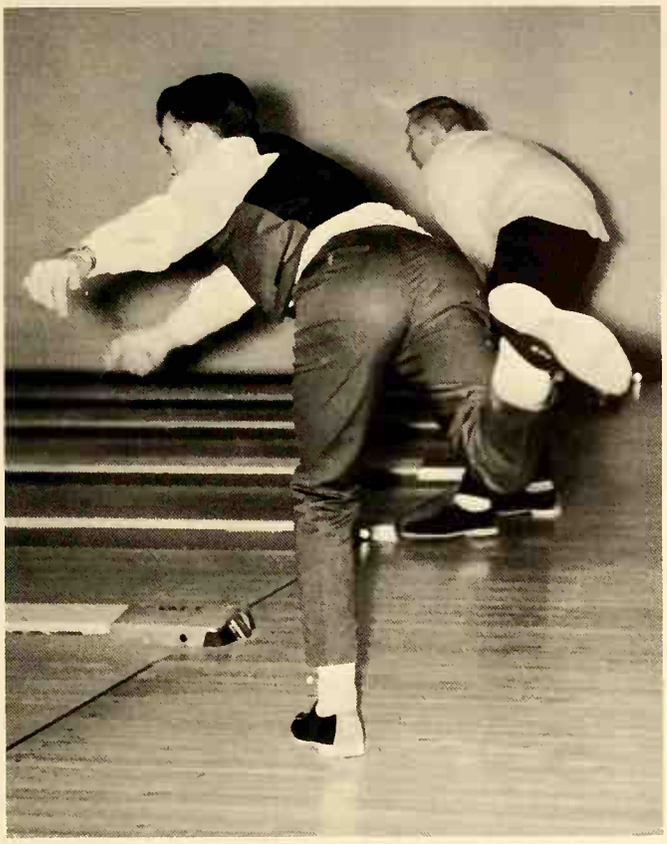
Youth For Christ was an organization established to bring students closer to Christ and help them realize the problems of world religion today. Guest speakers and movies were part of their program. These illustrated the status of Christianity in other countries.

Each morning one of the members arranged and presented the devotions and a moment of meditation over the intercom.

Girls who are participating in the first-aid course are demonstrating the proper method of carrying an injured person to safety.

Girls interested in learning about a career in nursing met periodically to hear about opportunities and needs for qualified nurses. County health nurses and a registered nurse spoke at meetings. As part of their program, first-aid courses were also offered to any girl who wanted to participate.

Artificial respiration is being administered to this dummy, so when the real thing comes along, one of these girls might save a life.



Every Thursday afternoon at 3:55 the parking lot at Northwestern was filled with confusion. Sounds of running feet and slamming car doors could be heard distinctly. Eighty-eight students were in a rush to get to the Victory Bowling Lanes. At the lanes novice bowlers provoked laughter, but later earned the respect of their fellow students.

Mike Wilson lets go, trying for some pin action.

Keglers Awaited Thursday's Contests

Patty Baker tries for that hard-to-get strike.

Jeannine Hawk and Bill Carlyle rule from the throne at the Sweetheart Dance.

Bouquets of Flowers and Garlands of Hearts Created Illusion

Cupid helped the Girls' Athletic Association decorate the gym. It emerged on February 6, 1965, as a fairyland of Hearts and Flowers. This special kingdom was reigned over by King Bill Carlyle, and Queen Jeannine Hawk, who were selected on a secret ballot by those attending the dance. Senior members of the court were Joyce Snider and Doug Miller, Linda Hoberty and Ron Ross, Becky Westerfield and Jim Baker, Pat Baker and Dave Trego. Junior attendants were Rita Corbin and Bill Botkin. Sophomore attendants were Susan Bailey and Gary Maynard.

Mrs. Hamilton and G.A.A. members work eagerly preparing for Cupid's arrival.

Couples dance to soft music amid hearts and flowers.

GAA cabinet members Linda Hoberty, President; Bindie Wade, Vice-President; Ann Crow, Secretary; Donna Foster, Treasurer; Joyce Snider, Sports Chairman; met every Wednesday at noon to schedule a program of sports and interest for each girl.

Fun, Fitness, Fatigue . . .

"Play ball!" may mean the beginning of many sports for girls. Volleyball, soccer, basketball, softball, bowling, tennis, or ping pong were integrated into a year round recreational program for the members of the Girls' Athletic Association. Any girl paying 50 cents could be a member, but points for awards were gained through participation. Intramurals and interscholastic games provided team activity. Annually the Sweetheart Dance is sponsored by the GAA, financed by cooky and candy sales.

Jeannine Hawk sets up a revenge play against Greenon's volleyball team.

"Strike two!" shouts Ump Hamilton in a practice game against softball competition.

Rita Corbin lays up two points for the Warrior team.

Final round is always an exciting game to watch, but Jeannine Hawk doesn't seem to want to face up to it.

Reserves Show Hustle and Determination

Our reserve team had almost the same problem as the varsity did. They had a new coach this year, Mr. Hinkle. They, also started off on a slow beat, but ended the season going full force.

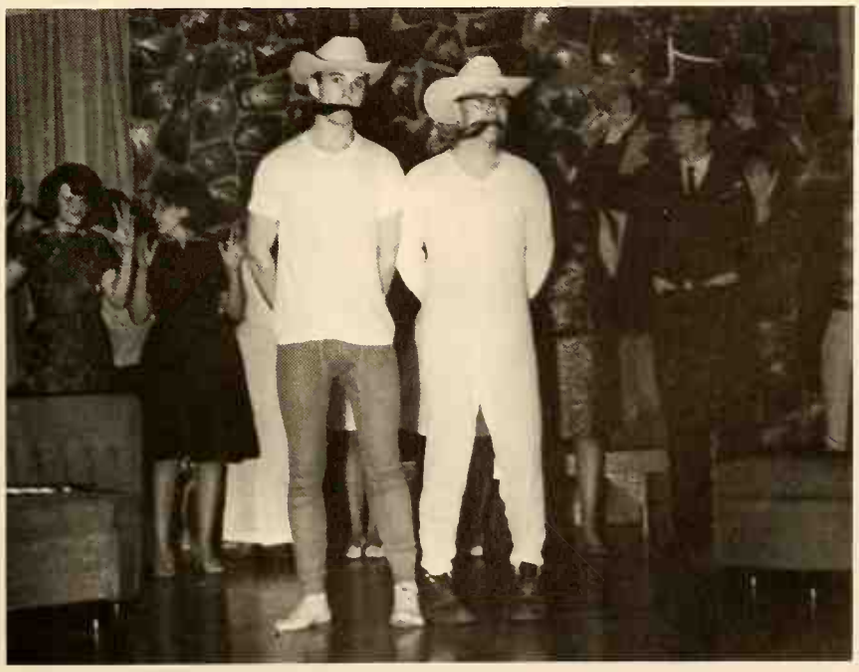
Uranium ruled in the Thespian production, "That's My Cousin", May 7, in the Northwestern "Little Theater".

Kitty Fowler, a New York city slicker, inherited a defunct dude ranch and set out to restore it to prosperity. Her methods were devious but effective. In order to entertain her guests she staged a hold-up and thereby hung a tale.

John Skillings is enthusiastically greeted by Karen Clark, as John Spencer looks on.

Robbers have confiscated Steve Barnhart's and Max Miller's clothes during the hold-up.



Phil Payne awaits pitch.

With the coming of spring and warm weather, balls, bats, and gloves became a more common sight after school. This year's team faced its best outlook in many years. Attendance at games and enthusiasm for baseball at Northwestern picked up considerably over previous years.

Rick prepares to "ace" a serve.

New for Northwestern was the spring sport, tennis. Under Coach Jerry Tuvell, the tennis players learned the rudiments of the game.

Mike Pitzer uses extra power for jump.

Although it was a disappointing season, in terms of winning and losing, the Warriors managed to leave some bright spots. Memorable spots of the season were as follows; a tie for second place in the Covington Relays, and a fourth place finish in the M.R.V.L. Track and Field meet.

Conrad Birdie Visited Northwestern

Female voices rang out ecstatic praises as the curtain rose on Bye Bye Birdie, April 2. Conrad Birdie, America's answer to the Beatles, was drafted into the army, so his manager, Albert Peterson, hatched a plan to capitalize on Conrad's sad departure. Conrad was sent to Sweet Apple, Ohio where he bestowed "One Last Kiss" upon Kim McAfee, a typical, screaming teenage girl. How a celebrity affected the small town of Sweet Apple provided enjoyment for the audience as well as the cast.

Teenagers of Sweet Apple spread the news about Ellen's receiving Ron's pin.

Ellen Johnson is telling her boyfriend, Ron Ross, not to fret about Conrad's kissing her because he's her "One Boy".

Lisa Neufeld is explaining to her darling Sonny that he is just like his father, "he'd marry anything." Linda Hoberty, to whom she is referring, grimaces while Lester Barnhart just laughs.

Beth Stewart is pleading with Conrad to lift his glorious voice in song.

After Lester Barnhart's proposal of marriage, Linda Hoberty accepts with a kiss.

Ellen Johnson and her family, Max Miller, Melissa Krafft, and Bill Evans, stand by, waiting for Keith Hyslop's (Conrad Birdie) reaction to sweet Apple.

Active members of the Northwestern Chapter of the National Honor Society inducted eighteen new members. They toiled for many weeks, assembling the program, originating speeches, planning the tea, and inviting friends and relatives to the tapping services. This special day was set for Tuesday, March 16. These students also selected the sixth adult honorary member, Lynn Northup, principal of Northwestern Elementary and a teacher in our school system 41 years.

All inductees were chosen on the basis of outstanding character, service, leadership, and scholarship. Each is required to maintain these standards to remain in the society. Juniors initiated were Maryann Wilkinson, Bill Botkin, Nancy Baker, Cindy Crabbe, Betty Abbott, Sandi Casey, John Gordon, Cheryl Skillings, Steve Barnhart, Nancy Hearne, Pete Haines, Earl Bullock, and Jim Gregory. Seniors initiated were Donna Hubbard, Mike Mumma, Larry Newman, and John Bartley.

ICE PALACE . . .

Tables surrounding the Ice palace Ballroom were empty, as their occupants danced under the chandeliers, to the music of Dick Runkle's Orchestra, while walruses leered, musk oxen beamed approvingly, sea gulls cried, and penguins gazed wistfully. Friday, May 21, Rita Corbin, who had been elected by the Junior Class, was crowned 1965 Prom Queen by Cheryl Mast, the 1964 Queen.

Chaperones gazed upon dancing couples, perhaps remembering their own high school prom.

Stunned, Rita Corbin is being crowned Prom Queen by Cheryl Mast.

A COOL PROM!

Dick Runkle and his orchestra provided a background of soft music for the Ice Palace ballroom.

Queen's court, consisting of Maryann Wilkinson escorted by Brad West, Sandy Truman escorted by Earl Bullock, Cheryl Skillings escorted by Neil Warren, Queen Rita escorted by Bill Botkin, 1964 Prom Queen Cheryl Mast escorted by Mike Wilson, Susie Allison escorted by Tom Wettig, and Nancy Baker escorted by Bob Quinton, poses after the coronation.

Queen Rita and her escort Bill Botkin are leading the "snow ball" following the coronation.

Bill Pritchard is receiving his souvenir key chain and prize number from the Junior Parents.

Victory Lanes was the scene and midnight was the time for a swinging after prom party sponsored by the junior parents. Johnny Walker, WIZE disc jockey, played the top hits as the kids danced the latest steps: the Freddie, the Frug, the Watusi, and the Jerk. Numerous door prizes were given during the evening which were donated by the various Springfield businesses. Juniors also performed in several fractured fairy-tales which added extra spice.

John Downing watches his opponent alertly, to score the correct number of pins on the bowling sheet.

Assemblies Entertained, Inspired,

Assemblies helped break the monotony of the school days. Students learned about the 1964 Tokyo Olympics from Bob Schul, an Olympic gold-medal winner, and the hazards of driving, from films and demonstrations sponsored by an insurance company. Everyone was entertained by "Aunt Jemima," sponsored by the Breakfast Optimist Club, and a Thanksgiving play, presented by the Speech class, entitled, "Historical Hysterics". They were inspired by the Christmas and Easter assemblies which featured the Northwestern Band and the Choir.

Aunt Jemima, besides being a talented cook, also sings in a rich voice. Here, she is warbling "Summertime".

Recognition Day

Outstanding senior Thespians are recognized: Karen Clark, high points; Lisa Neufeld, college recommendation; John Skillings, college recommendation; Lester Barnhart, best actor; Linda Hoberty, best actress; and Joyce Snider, outstanding Thespian.

Students receive certificates for perfect attendance from Mr. Lutz.

John Skillings is awarded the National Honor Society Athletic Trophy by Mr. Peters for his excellent scholastic and athletic ability.

Mr. Tuvell presents medals to the tennis team for their efforts during the year.

Special Activities . . . Deserved Merit

David Weddington was one of the first-place winners in the Prince of Peace Contest from Northwestern; then he traveled to the county contest, becoming the first-place winner. Here Dave leaves school to go to Kettering for the district contest, where he lost.

Dictionaries and reference books aid Melissa Kraft in the writing of her Voice of Democracy Speech. She received first place honors at Northwestern in the contest sponsored by the North Hampton Post of the V.F.W. and then won second place in Clark County.

One early morning in April finds Mr. Tuvell and Maryann Wilkinson preparing to depart for the 19th World Affairs Institute in Cincinnati. Maryann was chosen Northwestern's representative in the group from Clark County which Mr. Tuvell chaperoned.

Becky Westerfield and Ron Ross are found reviewing for the county Alcohol Quiz Book test after receiving first and second at Northwestern. Becky then won first-place in the county test and a six-day trip to Washington D.C.

With the advice of Miss Krueger and Mrs. Krueger, Sue Taylor is planning for her trip to Buckeye Girls State at Capital University, Columbus. Sue was chosen by a committee consisting of representatives of the Pilot Club, American Legion Auxiliary, and the faculty.

While enduring the teasing of the upperclassmen, the Sophomores started planning for the future, deciding whether or not to go on to higher education. Mr. Greer helps many students make long range schedules and iron out conflicts in them.

Careers and Courses Mapped

Social relationship and behavior films were shown and afterward discussed in Mr. Lutz's guidance classes.

Eyes of reading class students become fatigued after watching closely, trying to recognize numbers flashed in front of them.

Junior High Struggled with Fundamentals of English

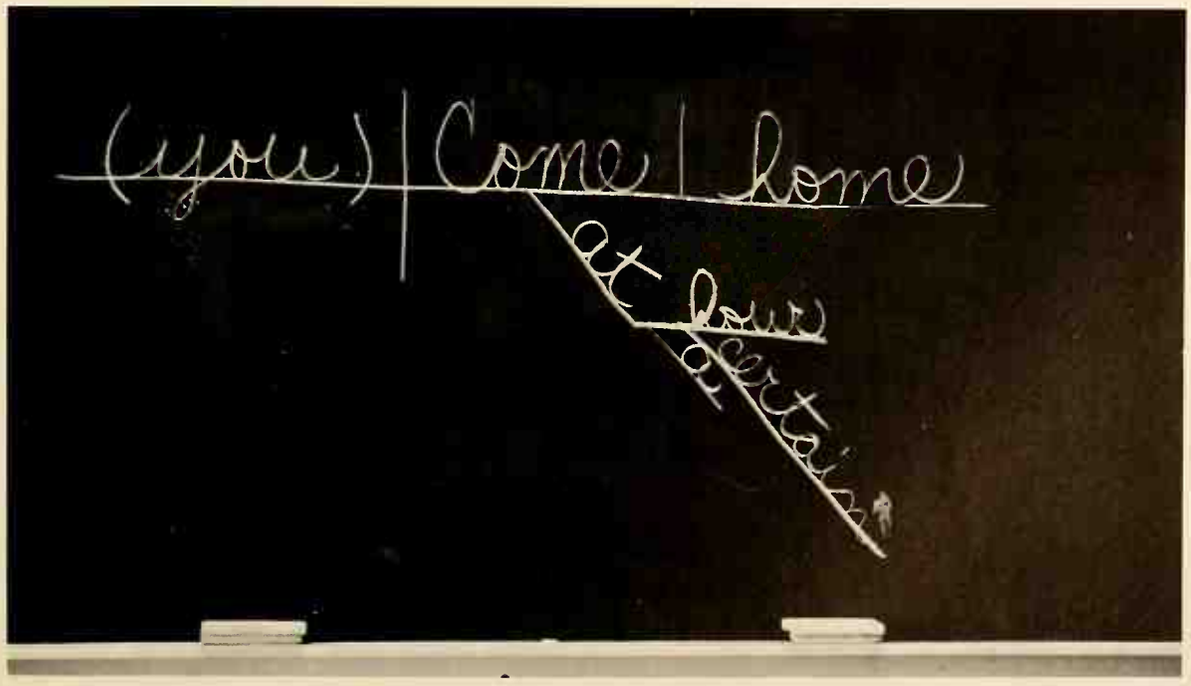
Dramatics students read junior high announcements and devotions in the morning.

Josephine Chizmar, advisor of the Dramatics Club and Thespians, taught all ninth grade English classes. She went to Wittenberg University to obtain her A.B. She had charge of the plays and musicals presented by Northwestern.

Seventh grade English was taught by Alma Pryor, who attended Asbury College for her A.B.

Poems, short stories, and essays for seventh graders turned former reading classes into literature classes. They began diagramming sentences in preparation for high school English and giving book reports to experience speaking in front of a group.

Diagramming—a familiar sight for all junior high English students.



Physical Fitness Program Invaded Phys. Ed. Classes

Girls enjoy athletic activities in class and as a pastime . . .

Basketball, volleyball, tennis, soccer, ping pong, and tumbling are a few of the sports that were taught physical education students. They learned the rules, size of field or court, and the skills of playing the game.

All junior and senior high girl's physical education classes and junior high health classes were instructed by Caroline Hamilton, who earned her B.S. at Wittenberg University. She was coach of the interscholastic volleyball and basketball teams, had charge of girl's intramurals, and was the advisor of the Girl's Athletic Association.

At Eastern Kentucky State College, Roger Meek received both his A.B. and M.A. His first year of teaching included all junior high boy's physical education and health classes, coaching the junior high varsity basketball squad, and assisting the junior high football coach.

. . . every fellow has fun at games!

While wholeheartedly playing crab soccer, boys enjoy keen rivalry in physical education class.

While explaining the proper procedure to follow when working a math problem, Mrs. Mast seeks the correct answers from students.

Math and Science Courses Built a Foundation for Physical Sciences and Higher Maths

Having graduated from Iowa State College with her A.B., Elizabeth Gustafson, in her sixth year of teaching at Northwestern taught all seventh grade science classes.

Mildred Daniels, B.S. Miami University, last year instructed all seventh grade math classes.

Wilbur Lewis, after attending Rio Grande College to get his B.S., taught Algebra I and math.

Also teaching Algebra I and math was Ruby Mast, who attended the University of Cinncinati for her B.S.

Teaching all ninth grade general science and general business classes, Gene Pencil earned his A.B. at Ohio State University.

With the members of ninth grade science classes, Mr. Pencil discusses how the orbit of the moon results in an eclipse.

Teacher of eighth grade American history, Theda Brakefield earned her A.B. and M.A. from Eastern Kentucky State College.

Elsie Weikert, B.S. from Wittenberg University, taught seventh grade geography.

Teaching Ohio history, and civics and assisting the coach of the high school football squad was Larry Rice, who attended Wittenberg University to get his B.S.

Social Studies Introduced 7th and 8th Graders to . . . .

Every year seventh grade students collect many pamphlets and much information for their required geography notebooks.

Our earth's surfaces, continents, countries, climate, peoples, industries, and products were studied by all seventh grade pupils taking geography.

During one semester of Ohio history, eighth graders learned about Ohio in its earlier years: how it was settled, what battles were fought here, and its economic development.

Second semester civics classes studied the duties, rights, and privileges of citizens.

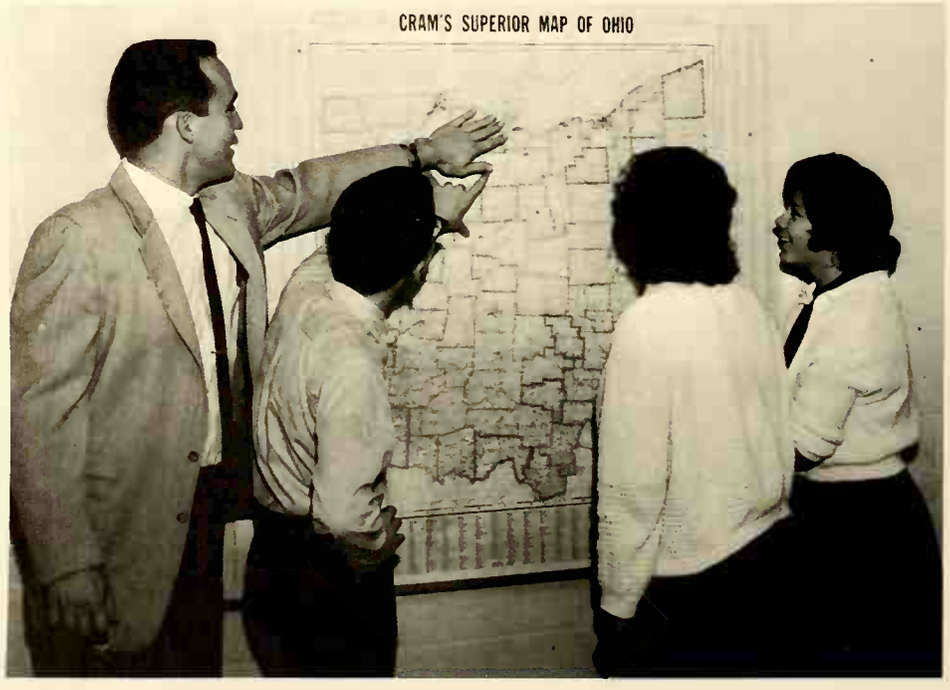
Studying and learning about the events leading up to the discovery of America and how it was developed was the task of eighth graders in American history classes.

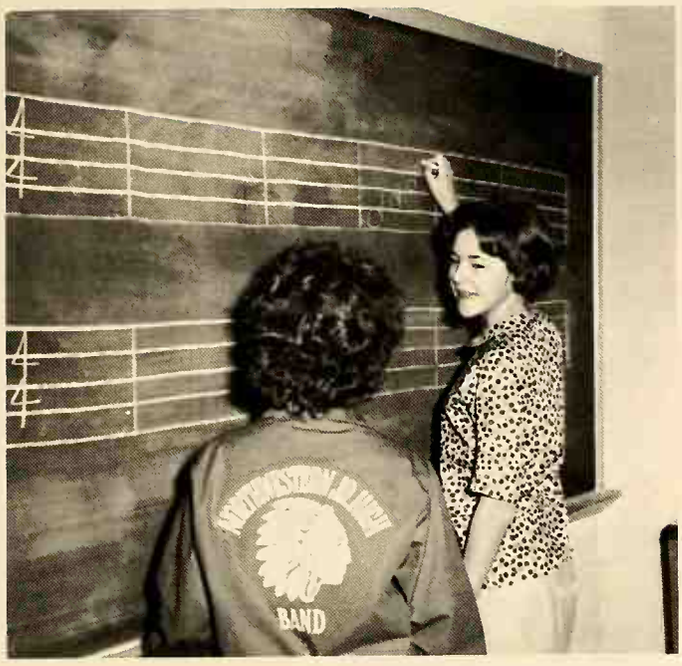
During the first semester, maps of Ohio are a familiar sight for Ohio history students.

Wide,

Wide

World





Explanations on the blackboard help seventh grade students visualize the structure and formations of music.

Philip Bailey obtained a B.S. at Bethal College where he majored in vocal music. He taught English and general music and directed all choirs at Northwestern.

Created Patriotic Celebration

Dogwood Daze, the junior high musical, was presented with the help of the seventh, eighth, and ninth grade choirs, and junior high band. Red, white, and blue, as a color scheme, was a perfect setting for the Fourth of July Parade that featured a number of specialty acts. Mrs. Chizmar, Mr. Bailey, and Mr. Kesler directed the musical.

Janice Larson displays her acrobatic dancing talent to parents and friends.

Opponents' forward progress is stopped by aggressive Warriors.

As in the past seven years, our little Warriors turned in an exceptional season and this year's record matched that of last year's, 3—1—1. Their opening game pitted them against Graham in which the Warriors won, 20—0. Possum was rolled over in a 40—6 victory. Next to fall was Reid, by a score of 18—6, followed by a tie with Olive Branch, 8—8. Our last and decisive game against Northridge, on which the county championship depended, was lost, 2—0.

Cheerleaders give that certain "umph" to a game.

Cheerleaders Sparked Our Team on to Victory

After a hard school day, cheerleaders long shadows stretch across the field to encourage players to greater effort.

Student librarians give helpful tips to fellow students.

Without the help of lunchroom workers, librarians, and office workers, the teaching staff of the junior high would have lost much of their free time on extra duties. Students undertook these tasks voluntarily.

For the office workers, running errands, answering telephone calls, and locating teachers were only a few of their duties. Librarians often found themselves worried about finding lost books, and collecting fines. Free lunches were only a small reward for scraping dishes, serving trays, and cleaning up after lunch is over, but they willingly helped keep the lunchroom functioning smoothly.

Looking up someone's file becomes a common task for Debbie Boyd, student office helper.

Student lunch room workers enjoy their lunch period for a few minutes before they must start to work.

Helpers Benefitted School

What goes up—must come down as Terry Anderson shows that winning form to cross the bar.

. . . Being Upperclassmen

Ninth graders enjoyed the thrill of finally being "almost" high school students. Realizing this was their last year to enjoy the junior high social whirl, they set out to make the most of it. Rushing to ball games, pep meetings, and other extra-curricular activities was a big part of their fun. Included were a new variety of subjects to choose from, plus friends and teachers to meet.

Newly inducted members pledge themselves to the high standards set by the Honor Society.

Highest Honor Bestowed on Inductees

Induction into the Northwestern chapter of the Mary C. Shaffer National Junior Honor Society brought sighs of joy and relief for those who had received the highest honor given in Junior High. These new members not only had outstanding scholastic records, but had shown the qualities of citizenship, leadership, character, and service that earned this recognition. Following the induction service, April 9, a parents and friends tea was served.

Bill Evans proudly accepts a Thespian award for his performance in the high school musical, "Bye Bye Birdie."

Recognition Day was a thrilling day for every junior high student whether he earned an award, or simply watched a friend receive one. Certificates, seals, and medals were given to librarians, lunch room helpers, office assistants, and choir and band members for achievements and duties performed during the course of the year. Reading circle participants, and students placing in scholarship tests were also recognized.

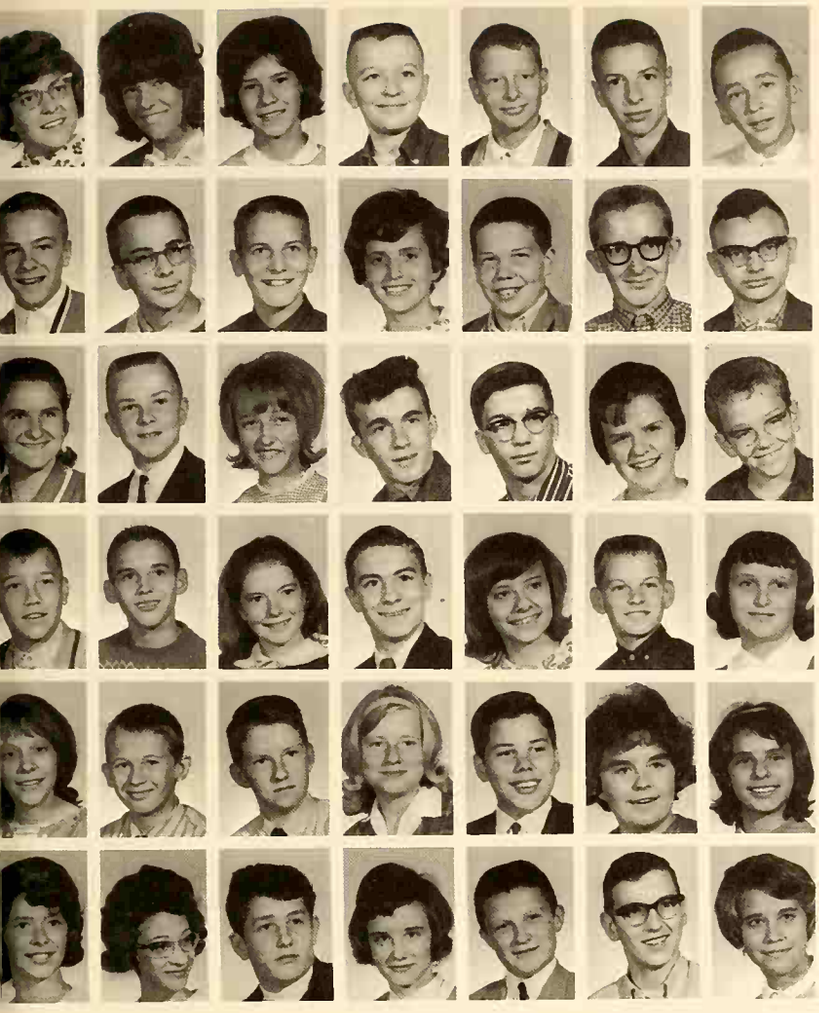
Eighth Graders



Now that they were no longer the "babies," eighth graders enjoyed junior high even more than ever. Their days were filled with adventuresome things to do, such as: intramurals, pep meetings, band, choir, lunch, and mass study halls. Also included in the eighth grade curriculum were the not too enticing requirements of Ohio History, Civics, American History, Math, and English, Their pep, energy and enthusiasm added little spice to the teachers day.

Students gather around a familiar place to discuss the day's problems.

Entering the Junior High brings new and exciting adventures to seventh graders. Dozens of new problems arise: struggling to adjust to new regulations, learning new names, coping with new and different courses, and wondering who's going to win the Thursday afternoon basketball game. These are all part of taking the big step from elementary to junior high.
